REVIEW.

New York, October 22.--Nearly one half of the dealings to noon was on the Southern securities, and Richmond Terminal common and preferred monopolized the attention of the traders. The morning papers and street gossip had long accounts of the big deal of yesterday, and all argued it would be for the ultimate benefit of the Richmond Terminal, but this was allayed with the report that an injunction would be applied for to prevent the Georgia Central and East-Tennessee deals from being consumma-ted. Influenced by this, enough stock came out to check any sharp advance in Richmond Terminal. Missouri Pacific and Northwestern were other weak features, but after the first hour shorts covered and improved the market. Later on Boston had another shock. Eastern Railroad, which closed at 85 last night, by 2 p. m. to-day was selling at 84. Again Boston sold this market, causing our prices to go off until at the close the lowest prices in most cases were reached in nearly all the list.

Methods of the Hotel Thief.

The hotel thief is always a clever rascal.
From external appearances no one would think of suspecting the well-dressed, gentlemanly looking individual who registers with a quiet and unassuming air and whose tone bespeaks both travel and education. He never dresses in gaudy colors and his apparel is usually chosen with the utmost good taste, stamping him as a gentleman of refined tastes. His tools, of the finest quality of tempered steel, consist of a "bar key," a set of bits of various sizes and arranged for either stem or tumbler locks, a small drill, a file, a "sectional stem," pieces of wire, and a pair of nippers. The implements do not occupy much room in the satchel of the nomadic thief and are frequently carried about with him. Hotel thieves travel in pairs. They manage to secure their rooms on the same floor and, if possible, close to each other. The habits of the guests on that floor are carefully studied, and it is soon ascertained which of the rooms are unoccupied. If there is only a single lock to contend with the work is soon done--the "bar key," with its appropriate bit, opens the door readily from the outside, and no further arrangements are necessary. When there is a bolt on the inside a hole is bored through the door immediately over the handle or knob, for the introduction of the "sectional stem" and then carefully pushed up until the time for operation arrives.

Five minutes is frequently all the time an expert occupies in "working" a single room. If the guest has left the key in the lock the nippers are used and the key is turned so quickly and noiselessly that no one would be aware of what is going on. If, however, there is an inner or double lock and a bolt on the door the putty from the drilled hole is quickly removed, the nippers are inserted, and in case the inside key has been prepared by filling a sharp awl is used, and, fitting into the slot in the end of the key, turns it readily. Then the "sectional stem," the "handle," or the bolt wire is inserted through the hole over the bolt, and with an easy turn of the wrist the bolt is thrown back and every obstacle to the entrance of the thief is removed, the partner keeping watch in the meanwhile.-- Chicago Times.

A Citadel of Stupidity.

It is a notorious fact that our kitchens are the strongholds of ignorance, prejudice, irrational habits and mental vacuity, with the result that Americans suffer beyond any other people from wasteful, unpalatable, unhealthful and monotonous cooking. Acquiescence in this state of things as something permanent and ir-remediable is no longer possible. The time has arrived when the advance of intelligence and the spirit of improvement must invade that citadel of stupidity, the kitchen, and banish from it all degrading associations by the presence of trained women who have made the work there carried on a matter of serious study.

Cooking should be done as Northcote mixed his colors, "with brains, sir!" The difference between cooking that is good and cooking that is bad is very much an affair of attention to trifles. And this power of attention to trifles is the outward and visible sign of the inward and well ordered brain. Slight mistakes, small omissions, little things done at the wrong time spoil dishes, and therefore much healthful enjoyment. The charm of good housekeeping is the order of economy and taste displayed in regard to details. The little things are the great things after all, when their influence is taken into consideration.--New York Medical Journal.

The Change in Watch Crystals.

There have been some curious changes of late years in the fashions for staple commodities, and especially is this true in the matter of watches. The watch is either looked upon as a trinket or as an article of serious use. In the first instance it is set in a round ball, encrusted with small diamonds, sometimes intermixed with rubies or with sapphires, or it forms the top of a smelling bottle, or is set in a bracelet or the handle of a parasol. But the serious watch of every day wear has become a very practical article indeed.
"In old days," said to me a famous Swiss jeweler of the Rue de la Paix the other day, "the business of replacing the watch crystals was an important item, amounting, on an average, to $39 per week. Now, instead of the delicate, soap bubble glass formerly used, the watch crystal is made thick and strong, so as to stand any amount of rough usage short of an actual blow. The introduction of these massive crystals has brought about a change in the make of watches. Not half so many hunting cased watches are sold as formerly, as they are so much less convenient than the open faced ones, and the thick crystal does away with the only real objection to the latter."--Paris Cor. Philadelphia Telegraph.

For the Workmen's Information.

In order that no antiquarian treasures unearthed in the digging of the Manchester Ship canal may be lost through ignorance of their nature or value, the local Antiquarian society has had printed and distributed among the workmen representations of arrowheads, stone implements, coins and pottery, with urgent requests that anything found of this nature may be transmitted to them with full details respecting the place of finding it, the depth, soil and surroundings.-- Home Journal.

An Anecdote of Webster.

A reminiscence of Daniel Webster, never told before in print, was related here the other day by a contemporary of the Massachusetts senator. It illustrates more forcibly than any hitherto recorded the extraordinary influence of his oratory.
Webster had given a friend his note for $5,000. A miserly old Whig--the richest man in Alexandria--bought the paper at a sharp shave. He admired Webster and trusted him. The note matured. The senator could not pay. The miser dunned Webster persistently, but without effect.
Mr. Webster made a positive appointment to meet him one morning, but was not to be found either at his home or in the senate.

The note holder was walking away from the Capitol in despair when he saw Webster approaching with head high in air, eyes sunken with far away look, lips parted and teeth showing in broad smile.
The old Whig lost courage and passed without recognition. Next morning, in perusing the newspaper, he read Webster's reply to Hayne. At once he took the orator's note and tore it to pieces, so prodigious was the effect of the splendid philippic.--Washington Cor. America.

Evolution of the Sneak Thief.

The first deceptions are made when as little children they rush through the streets and descend like a plague on a fruit vendor's cart or a grocer's corner, and are gone before the proprietor has time to protect himself or catch them. They are then school children with at least half a chance of becoming respectable workmen.
Those who are so inclined easily take the next step, which is that of stealing for men and youths who plan what they shall do and reward them meagerly. Their small hands, while they are children, make them very useful to adult thieves in opening the bolts behind barred area gates. Their tiny bodies enable them to crawl through faultlights. Thus they become full fledged criminals drifting about the city by day and by night in an army that must number thousands.--New York Cor. Providence Journal.
